We are often told that college will be the best 4 years of our lives. It's the goal of the Argo to document those four years, one year at a time.

So here's the story of 2013-14...

Events

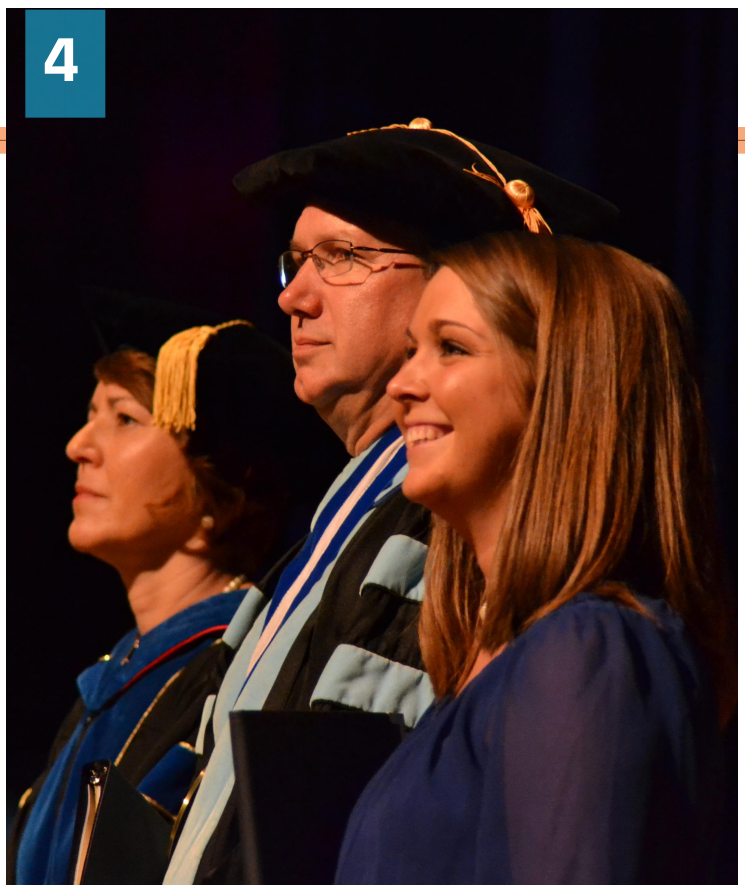

1. First-years and their parents receive information in the TUB during orientation.
2. Erica Hillwig and Marina Rozick are all laughs as they take part in Late Night.

3. Katherine Francois poses with her fresh-starters at the President's picnic.
4. Dean Wood, President Dorman, and 2013 SGA President Emily Wiest at the Opening Convocation.

Fresh Start

5. Fresh Start groups spend lots of time together the first weekend and get to know their future Inquiry classes.
6. First-Year students walk through the Gauntlet.

Fresh Start is all about introducing First-year and transfer students to the Westminster campus. The Class of 2017 were greeted by their Fresh Start leaders on the hot and bustling move in day. Opening Convocation started the weekend off with professors lining their paths to the future. The time had come to take on the Westminster student status.

Between ice-breakers, and a scavenger hunt designed to familiarize them with campus, they attended informational sessions. The Fresh Start groups would then become the students future Inquiry classes.

Evening entertainment which included Late Night, and a Reggae Dance added some fun to the information heavy days. Wahoo Westminster, an interactive game show, was a new addition to the Fresh Start line up. After surviving the hike to the President's house for the President's Picnic and learning everything they need to know about Westminster, they were ready for classes to begin.

Only at Westminster a weekend long orientation brings together first-years, upperclassmen, and faculty in a laid back way that is a long standing tradition.

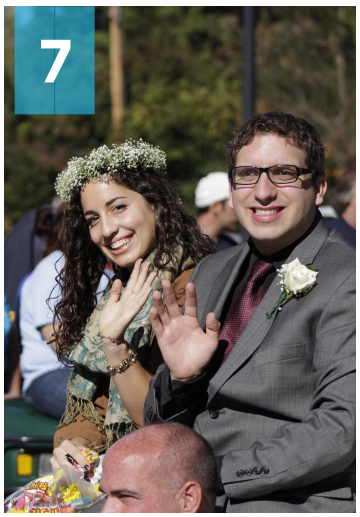

1. The sisters of Alpha Gamma Delta show their spirit and excitement as they travel down South Market Street.
2. The Titan mascot joins in on the festivities, parading through the streets wielding his mighty sword.
3. The brothers of Phi Kappa Tau proudly carry their letters through the streets.
4. The Sigma Kappa sisters show their spirit while herding Little Bo Peep and her sheep companions through the parade.
5. The Alpha Phi Omega brothers gallivant along the street in celebration of homecoming weekend.
6. Independents Lauren Fling and Nick Smith enjoy cruising through town.
7. Julz Martinez and Alex Pasquarelli's bright smiles show their excitement for homecoming weekend as they wave to the crowd during the parade.
8. Emily Lantzy poses to show off her Alpha Gamma Delta pride and her school spirit.
9. The marching band adds to the exhilarating atmosphere of the parade with their school spirit and powerful music.

Homecoming Parade

Only at Westminster will you find college students happily parading through town dressed as herds of animals, bakers, and Queens. This year, on a warm October morning, New Wilmington watched as fairytales came to life during the annual Homecoming Parade with the theme "Mother Goose." Everyone took a trip down memory lane and enjoyed nursery rhymes that ranged from the Itsy Bitsy Spider to Solomon Grundy.

Fraternities, sororities, and other campus organizations spent countless hours making their nursery rhymes come to life.

The Titan Marching Band and the Wilmington High School Band marched along with upbeat songs, while classic cars transported members of the Homecoming court and reunion classes. Representatives from the class of 1963 judged the annual float contest. The campus organizations competed hoping to get the honored title of first place. For the second year, Zeta Tau Alpha won, with the Five Little Monkey's Jumping on a Bed. They built an enchanting forest full of tired monkeys and a comfortable hammock bed. Phi Mu's Little Red Riding Hood placed second, Sigma Kappa's Little Bo Peep received third place, and Habitat for Humanity's Three Little Pigs earned fourth place.

Homecoming Game

On a beautiful, sunny October day, Burry Stadium thundered with Titan Pride during the Homecoming football game against Carnegie Mellon.

Titan Tailgating preceded the big game. The atmosphere was filled with laughter, good times, and the smell of grilled hot-dogs as children ran around with the beloved letters "WC" tattooed to their cheeks. Tents lined the outside of the football field welcoming back former members.

Ian Davis of Theta Chi and Emily Puruczky of Alpha Gamma Delta were crowned Homecoming King and Queen as the Titans prepared for a warring second half.

Most of the action happened on the field. The Tartans put up a grueling fight; however, the Titans proved to be stronger. The Titans prevailed with a final score of 27-24. Go Big Blue!

1. Collin Wallace fights for a Titan victory against his Tartan opponent.
2. Kendall Williams escorts Rachel Hiltz onto the field to join the homecoming court.
3. At halftime, Ian Davis and Emily Puruczky were crowned homecoming king and queen.
4. Last year's king and queen, Sarah Carlson and Greg Clark stand with Gina Vance, ready to pass on their crowns to the new king and queen.
5. Dan Graham gets ready to snap the ball and put the players into action.
6. (From Left to Right) Nick Smith, Lauren Fling, Nicholas Hainsey, Emily Puruczky, Christian Friday, Sarah Waszyn, Greg Clark, Sarah Carlson, Stephanie Bucci, Ian Davis, Rachel Hiltz, Kendall Williams, Alex Pasquarelli, Juls Martinez
7. The Titans' loyal fans, students and alumni alike, come out to support their team on their way to victory.

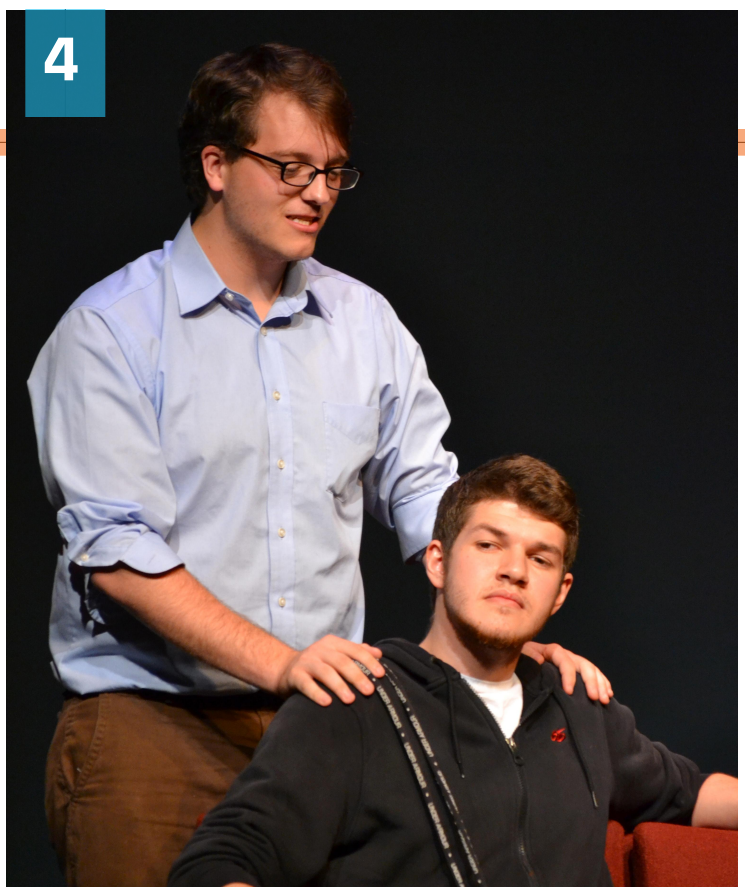

1. Maggie Hess evokes the intensity of her character with a fierce gaze.
2. Josh Scott and Mackenzie Thomas are caught in a dramatic moment during Italian American Reconciliation.

3. Anne Rematt and Dr. John Westgate show how technology affects relationship in "iPride".
4. Ian Davis comforts Cody Currie during a touching scene between brothers.

Fall Productions

5. Kendall Willliams and Victoria Volkay share an intimate moment while they wait in the lobby of a clinic in "I got you babe".
6. Brett Polluck is overwhelmed with emotion during the 10-Minute Play Festival.

On the strength of a five person cast, Theatre Westminster brought invigorating life to John Patrick Shanleys's folktale, Italian American Reconciliation. Directed by John Gresh and with the help of scenographer, Terry Bana Jachimiak II, the show ran November 14th-16th. Shanley's story focuses on Huey Maximilian Bonfigliano (Josh Scott) who struggles to regain his manhood after divorcing his shrewish, dog shootin' first wife, Janice (Antonia Flamini). In attempt to put his broken marriage behind, he plans to woo her one last time.

During the weekend of October 3rd-6th, Theatre Westminster presented their First Annual 10-Minute New (And Nearly New) Play Festival. As the name suggests, the festival consisted of eight 10 minute plays containing scripts that are either brand new, or have been performed once or twice before. Westminster faculty, professors, and students took a hand in directing, producing, and even starring in the various shows.

RESIDENCE LIFE

Westminster students are greeted with a plethora of activities and fun in the fall to get them psyched for the upcoming months. First-year students are introduced to activities and organizations that Westminster has to offer through mini-golf in the library and the activities fair, which included zip lining this year. Mortar Board enjoyed raising money by dressing a professor in a turkey costume, to the amusement of the student body.

Tibetan monks made an appearance on campus with their beautiful sand art and introduced parts of their culture to the students who enjoyed widening their cultural horizons.

These fall happenings allowed students to enjoy the last of the warm weather and the changing leaves as they eased back into life at Westminster.

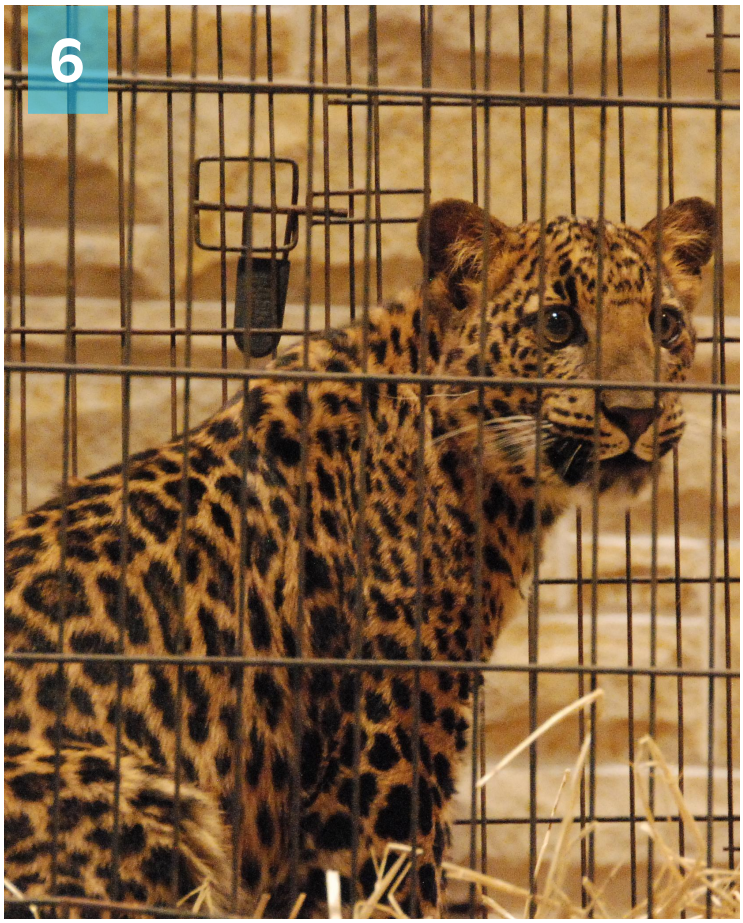

1. SGA Senators prepare pizza for students during lunch.
2. Christian Friday drives students around campus.
3. Rachel Gibbs runs the Cotton Candy Machine in the TUB.
4.Kendall Williams, Andrew Didio, Nick Pizzuto, and Kevin Mroz celebrate free pizza.
5. Students were treated to a free animal show.
6. A baby leopard gazes out into the audience.
7. The owl showed its impressive head turning abilities during his time in the spotlight.
8. Students love the free golf cart rides every semester during SGA Day.
9. SGA Senators take a break from the busy day.
10. The animal show brought many cute animals to campus.

SGA Days

The Student Government Association (SGA) holds an SGA Day each semester. The days are filled with fun and lots of free stuff for students. In the fall, the returning SGA Slate Wiest (named for the SGA President Senior Emily Wiest) held their final SGA Day while in office. The day started with free donuts for breakfast followed by free pizza for lunch. Students look forward to the all-day golf cart rides from the SGA Senators to and from class especially students who have to walk from the other side of campus. The day was also filled with an inflatable obstacle course and fried goodies. Spring semester marked the first SGA Day for the new Slate Zimmerman (named for SGA President Junior Bret Zimmerman). The day was filled with the usual free donuts and pizza. The golf cart rides were welcomed more than usual because of the damp spring day. The day ended with an animal show in Berlin Lounge. Students look forward to SGA Days all semester long.

1. Students help one another while working hard on the roof.
2. In Maryville, Tennessee a group visit an old log cabin within the Smoky Mountains.
3. Students and Advisors of Habitat for Humanity pose in front of a house they worked on.
4. The South Carolina group poses for pictures after church.
5. Rachel Letscher and Farrah Kalleja balance a board during construction.
6. Jess Shellenberger steadies a ladder for a fellow worker.
7. Students leave no job undone, they even use the power tools themselves.
8. The South Carolina Habitat group takes time from their busy schedules to enjoy a nice meal.
9. Chris Molnar focuses while building the frame of the house.

Spring Break

While others spent spring break vacationing, relaxing, or simply enjoying time away from school, members of Habitat for Humanity and other students spent their spring break making a difference in the lives of others. Westminster sent two groups on the Habitat spring break trips this year, one to Tennesee and one to South Carolina. A total of eighteen students and four advisors traveled to Maryville, Tennessee serving through Habitat for Humanity and ReStore, a store that sells surplus building supplies and household goods to raise money for Habitat. The New Providence Presbyterian Church hosted the students and advisors during the second week of March. During their time they worked on three houses, prepping shed walls, prepping trusses for the current house sheds, rehabbing a former Habitat home, and rebuilding a deck. A second group of students and advisors spent the week in Charleston, South Carolina working with another Habitat for Humanity Chapter in the area.

Spring Productions

Theatre Westminster opened this Spring with Lisa Dillman's psychological thriller The Walls. The Walls centers around a young woman named Carrie who must confront the issue of her mother's untimely death and the possible consequences of her own complicated inheritance in this time-bending play about the elusive nature of madness.

The season closed with a devised-piece inspiried by the book Snakes, Butterbeans, and the Discovery of Electricity by James Perkins. Writen and directed by Dr. Mackenzie, with the help of the company, the actors were able to infused the stories of their own childhoods along with Perkin's in the play.

1. Students work hard to give the best show they can.
2. The cast of Snakes, Butterbeans, and the Discovery of Electricity gather around the table.
3. Anne Rematt and Liz Ishman capture the audience with the portrayal of their characters.
4. Margaret Hess and Kendall Williams bring to life their characters in The Walls.
5. Victoria Volkay chats with Heaven Brown during their performances in The Walls.
6. Abby Miles takes center stage during The Walls.
7. Hunter Steinitz and Adam Seymour stand together during Snakes, Butterbeans, and the Discovery of Electricity.
8. The cast of Snakes, Butterbeans, and the DIscovery of Electricity stand below a photo of the Author, James Perkins.

1. Brunch and snacks were a vital part of the weekend that kept everyone's energy up.
2. Face painting was a hit with siblings of all ages.

3. Westminster's Chemistry Club makes ice cream using dry ice, the experiment added to the magic of the weekend.
4. Little Sibs Weekend is a great way for little brothers and sisters to visit their older companions who are away at college.

Lil' Sibs Weekend

5. Two little princesses enjoy an ice cream break.
6. Some little siblings enjoy the pool party.
7. The TUB saw a younger crowd during Lil' Sibs weekend..

Little siblings of all ages enjoyed a magical weekend at Westminster with their Westminster siblings this year. Westminster's campus was transformed into a pixie dust-filled dream for the adventurous children with its Disney theme. Little girls enjoyed royal makeovers and princess lessons to bring out the stunning princesses in them. Boys could head over to the Titan Club for video games and face paint, and the pool hosted a party for everyone almost all weekend. Siblings and students alike adored bonding over movies in Mueller, including Pirates of the Caribbean and Frozen, a new favorite among all ages. A bounce house and pizza party were other crowd favorites, and a grander time was not had by even Cinderella herself.

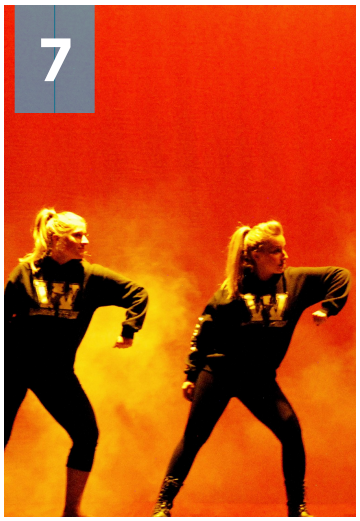

1. Haley Casuccio, Renee Cantrell, and Kayleigh Gill show off their sass and their smiles during their number.
2. Amazing lifts with the help of the gentlemen involved in Dance Theatre were just some of the talents presented.
3. Jenna Natale strikes a pose during their beautiful ballet number.
4. These energetic Titans took on the role of newsboys in their fun dance number.
5. While Westminster does not offer a Dance major, Dance Theatre is a great way for Titans to practice their moves all year long.
6. Ian Davis and Greg McClelland tap along to Carrie Underwood's "Blown Away."
7. Chelsea Haybarger and Lauren Gezo show off their bold moves.
8. Michelle Rohal performs her graceful solo.
9. The Dance Team shows their moves on stage.
10. Jenna Natale and Michelle Rohal dance their hearts out on stage.

Dance Theatre

The talented ladies (and gentlemen) of Dance Theatre worked hard all year and practiced endlessly to ensure that their show this year would exemplify their passion for dance- and it certainly did. With nineteen dance numbers, Dance Theatre rocked and rolled all weekend long with their "I Wanna Rock" themed performance. Several seniors showed off their skills with spectacular solos, and everyone involved danced their hearts out to a variety of ballet, jazz, hip-hop, tap, and contemporary numbers.

Although Westminster does not offer a Dance major or minor, Dance Theatre allows these lovely dancers to continue to do what they love. Each year they choreograph the numbers themselves and create cohesive, fun costumes to add to their performances. These dedicated ladies put hours of practice and preparation into this wonderful show that is loved and looked forward to by all Titans on campus.

VolleyRock

The annual VolleyRock tournament is a Westminster tradition that takes place every spring semester. Teams sign up and pay a small fee to enjoy a day of awesome activities, prizes, giveaways, and food. Each member of the team receives a VolleyRock drawstring bag, shirt, and water bottle. Besides playing in the volleyball tournament players are treated to all you can eat wings while listening to great music and basking in the sun. VolleyRock provides the much needed stress relief before finals start and everyone goes home for the summer.

1. VolleyRock brings out the goofy side of everyone including the senators and students.
2. The sisters of Alpha Gamma Delta enjoy their wings after a day of Volleyball.
3. SGA members staff the VolleyRock tournament but also get a chance to play.

4. Students pile their Quaker Steak & Lube wings high onto frisbees, a Volley Rock tradition.
5. The line for food may have been long but the students don't complain once they get their fill of all-you-can-eat wings.
6. This Volley Rock team is focused and ready to send the ball flying over the net.
7. Players from opposing teams shake hands after their match.

Spring Events

Westminster students return in the spring with a full list of activities to start the New Year and finish the academic year. Students in the TUB were greeted with Bad Karaoke, where students or faculty could pay money to get students to stop singing. Bad Karaoke benefited Project Malawi. The campus was also treated to numerous theater productions in the spring.

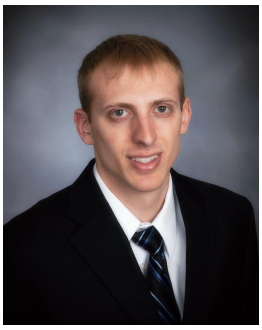

The Ultimate Frisbee Organization held the first annual Ultimate Frisbee Tournament. Westminster hosted the tournament while teams from other schools were invited to participate. Pause for Paws once again came to campus. Students could go to Berlin Lounge and play with cats and dogs, a mutually beneficial program. The animals get love and attention and students receive an afternoon of stress relief during finals week.

These spring activities allowed students to forget about the chilly spring weather and enjoy the rest of the year at Westminster.

Choir Tour

1. Westminster's Choir shares their beautiful voices with communities and churches outside of New Wilmington.

2. A group of students enjoy the sunshine in the cold DC weather.

3. Lauren Thayer and Megan Squilla enjoy a meal on their downtime from singing and traveling.

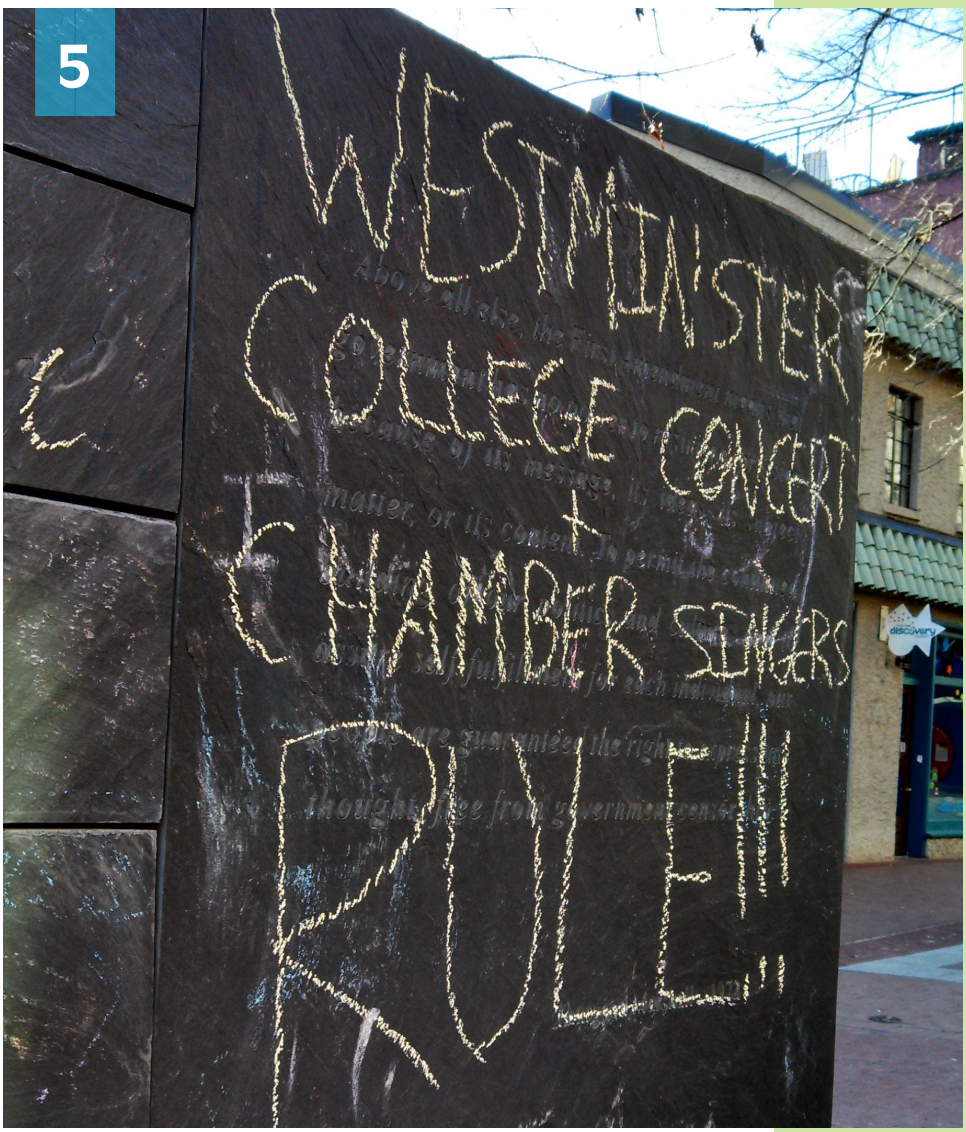

The Westminster Choir had the opportunity to do some traveling around Virginia and Maryland over their Christmas break to perform at a plethora of churches that they were connected to by Westminster alumni. As well as spreading the sound of their lovely voices and their Titan spirit across a different area of the country, they also enjoyed sightseeing and learning about the areas that they visited. Some of their stops included the Naval Academy, the National Aquarium in Baltimore, President Jefferson's home, and a musical at the Kennedy Center in Washington, DC. They also had the privilege of staying at the homes of Westminster alumni and learning about life as a Titan before their time. The students found the trip to be an educational and fun experience.

4. The group poses outside of the Lincoln Memorial in Washington, DC.

5. The students are proud to represent Westminster and to spread their spirit everywhere they go.

6. Lots of practice and singing is a must for this group of talented Titans!

WC in Fiji

Written by: Olivia Orth

Studying abroad was one of the best experiences of my life, and the fact that I was able to study in a place as beautiful and unique as Fiji made it that much better! Being in a new country allowed me to explore who I was as a student, a professional, and a person, and I can honestly say it was a growing experience I will never forget. Whether it was snorkeling with sharks, jumping off waterfalls, kayaking around volcanoes, or hanging out on the beautiful beaches, there was always something to explore and new wonders to find. The Fijian people are also some of the kindest, most compassionate souls you will ever meet. They will welcome anyone into their homes and talk with you for hours about the world. While there, I spent four months working in an orphanage. The smiles those children wore when they saw my roommate and I every week provided me with enough happiness to last my whole life. Attending the University of the South Pacific was also a great learning experience, I had to adapt to new ways of teaching, different accents and phrases, and different peers to collaborate with in each of my classes. The people I met along the way each had an impact on the changes that I went through during the time I was abroad, and each person left an imprint on my life I won't soon forget.

Studying Abroad:

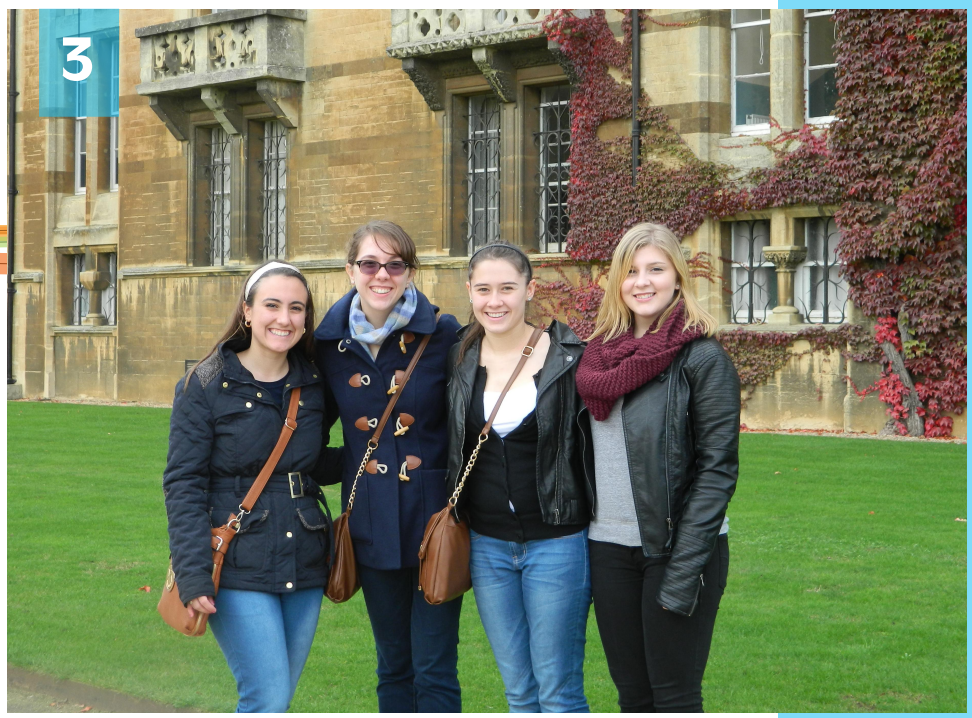

learning, traveling & finding yourself

Written by Lauren McElhaney - Printed in The Holcad on Friday, Jan. 31, 2014

For many years I have had what I call my dream jar. It is a small jar filled with slips of paper on which I've written my hopes and dreams. This jar has been a daily reminder of what I hope to accomplish in my life. It is brimming with ideas that range from being definitely do-able (attending the Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade), to being definite pipe dreams (having lunch with J.K. Rowling). A few years ago I added "travel the world" to my dream jar. At the time I thought it was more towards the `definitely dreaming' end of the spectrum. Little did I know that I would have the chance to fulfill that dream before I reached the age of twenty-one.

This past fall I travelled to London with thirty of my fellow classmates to study for 3 ½ months and it was by far one of the most educating, enriching, and rewarding experiences of my life. When I returned home in December people would ask if I saw various famous landmarks and most of the time I was able to answer in the affirmative. I had visited all the big tourist sites like Big Ben, Buckingham Palace, the London Eye, etc. But when I recounted my stories, I realized that while all of those places were very exciting, my most memorable moments occurred while doing the most mundane things. I remember the first time someone asked me for directions, and I was able to help them. Or there was the time that my friend and I got terribly lost in Notting Hill while searching for a museum, only to discover that the place was closed. Another day we found ourselves to be alone in the carriage on the Underground, a rare occurrence, and thus felt the need to commemorate the occasion by taking silly photos. I could go on and on. My point is that even though visiting major European landmarks was exhilarating, it was these little moments that meant the most to me. Studying abroad wasn't necessarily about all the cities and sites that I got to visit. It was about the memories I made, the bonds I formed, and the lessons that I learned. I had the opportunity to immerse myself in and become a part of the British culture. At the end of my journey I wasn't just a visitor any more, I was a Londoner.

I've found that it is impossible to fully explain everything that I learned from my time abroad but I can easily say that it was the most challenging and inspiring experience that I have ever done and I would recommend it to anyone. Not only did I make lifelong friends and create memories that I will treasure forever, but I also grew as a person. I became more confident and self-assured. I learned to be more flexible and outgoing. And I learned so much about diversity and different cultures. Every day, even the most ordinary day, was full of adventure and wonder. In the end, I had found my second home.

URAC

On Wednesday, April 30, 2014 Westminster held its annual Undergraduate Research and Arts Celebration (better known as URAC). Classes are canceled for the day so over 200 students could participate and the rest of the campus is able to attend during the day. Students who show their research may receive grants from the Drinko Center in order for them to further their research or take their research on the road. The campus becomes bustling with observers and every space is full of poster boards, musicians, documentaries, and more. This unique day at Westminster gives students the opportunity to present what they've been working on and it also gives their peers the opportunity to see what their friends have been doing for the past few months or even a year or more.

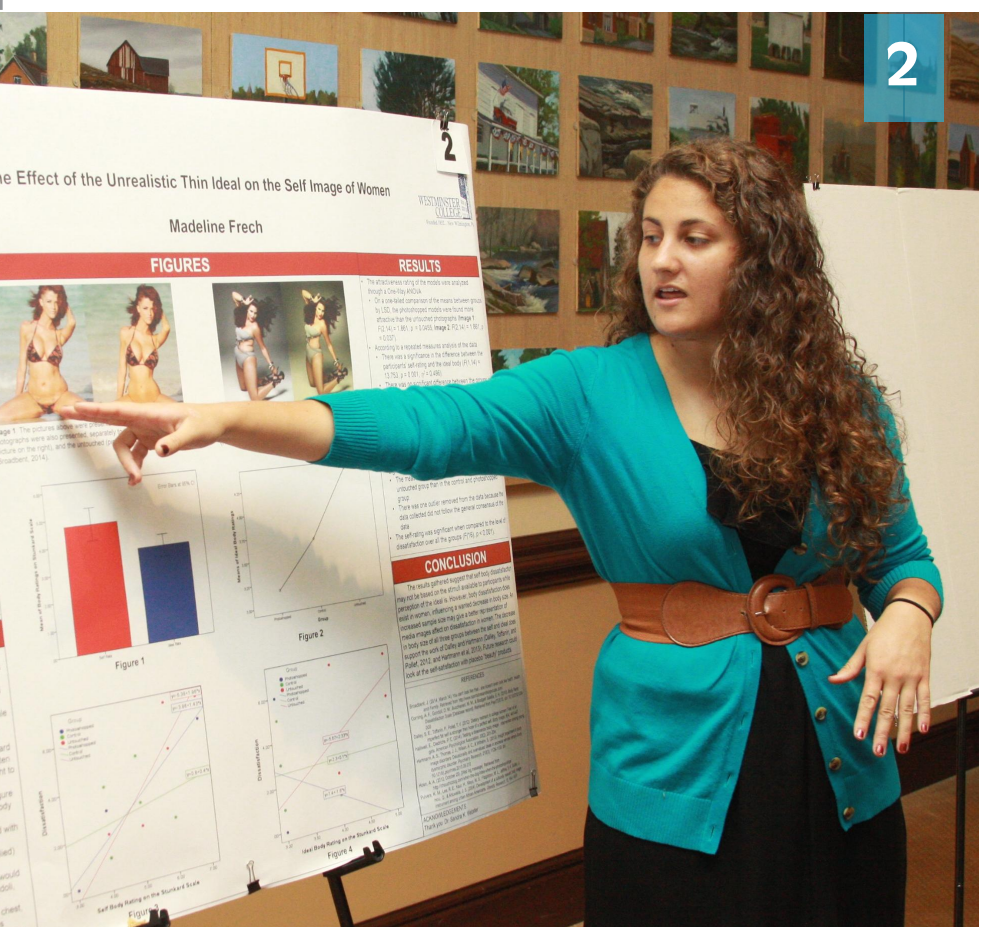

URAC

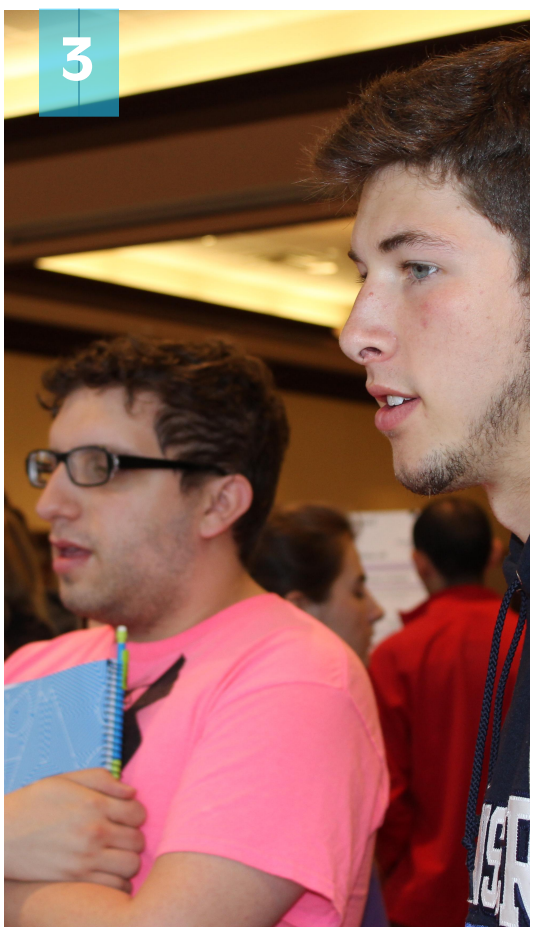

1. The posters created by URAC participants help attendees to understand their research and results.

2. Madeline French references her results during her presentation.

3. Westminster students are all encouraged to attend URAC and support their peers even if they are not presenting.

4. Jennifer Feil and Juls Murphy present their research together.

5. Alexandra Pasquarelli presents her research to a room full of professors and peers.

6. Sara Stefan and Andrew Zigler discuss her research during her poster presentation.

Let the Future Tell the Truth

History is written by the victors, but it is re-written by the internet. A prime example of this is the YouTube series, Epic Rap Battles of History. Now, Dr. Cuff may question their accuracy, but they do provide a funny window into the past. One of the more popular videos has Thomas Edison facing off against rival inventor Nikola Tesla. In real life, both men competed bitterly for fame and fortune during the turn of the twentieth century. In the end, Edison died a wealthy, well-known socialite, while Tesla died alone and penniless. Prior to his death, Tesla spoke these ominous words.

"Let the future tell the truth, and evaluate each one according to his work and accomplishments. The present is theirs; the future, for which I have really worked, is mine"

When you're a college student, everybody always wants to talk about your future. You go home for Christmas break, and it seems like relatives interrogate you. What do you want to do with your life? Do you have a girlfriend? Are you sure majoring in broadcasting is a good idea? But the closer your get to graduation, the less people ask about your future and the more they ask about the present. Have you applied for jobs yet? Are you moving out yet? You still don't have a girlfriend yet?

It's easy to feel like the present does not belong to us. We are at the mercy of hiring managers and grad school admissions departments. We get thrust out onto life's stage, and the audience says, "Impress me!" And when we don't, cynicism starts to set in. Our parents start believing those chain emails with articles about the "entitlement generation," and how all our cell phones and video games have made us self-centered, useless members of society. The conversation then turns to debt and unemployment, and soon, the cynicism reaches us, too. And suddenly, we begin worrying not only about our present, but our futures as well.

As a broadcast student, I spent over a year trying to develop a 30 second TV commercial for Westminster College. I spent weeks brainstorming about what made Westminster stand out from other schools. What can the school give students for the here and now? We have a cafeteria where the fire alarm goes off if you make waffles, a science building that is slowly being swallowed up by the earth, and a broadcast department with cameras that are older than me.

But at Westminster, a professor will call you on a Saturday morning in July to ask how your summer internship is going. At Westminster, your capstone advisor doesn't roll her eyes when you ask for another letter of recommendation. You can spend two hours in somebody's office talking about options for grad school. The registrar knows you by name, and the department chair will even give you a pound of home-grown bacon as a housewarming gift for your first apartment.

At Westminster, a whole community will come together to mourn the loss of a friend. It's a reminder that the kindness we show others in the present can affect the future for years to come.

What matters more than waffles or cameras, is that people at Westminster care. What sets us apart is that we put those feelings into action. When we see the faculty and staff go the extra mile for us, we are prompted to do the same for others. And we do, with philanthropy events and service projects, volunteering through our honor societies, religious groups, athletic teams, fraternities and sororities, and so much more. Even in our classes, we are taught to use what we learn to improves the lives of those around us. It's the classic Biblical lesson from Luke 12:48—"From everyone to whom much has been given, much will be required..." Or as Spider-Man's Uncle Ben put it, "With great power comes great responsibility."

If you look at people who have changed the world the most, it's often the men and women who used their knowledge and skills to improve the lives of others. Tesla saw his inventions as things that could help his fellow man. I feel that we learned a similar lesson here. While other colleges may offer fancier buildings or greener lawns, Westminster's strength lies not in what superficial things it offers for the here and now, but in the preparation and motivation it gives students for the future.

Seventy one years after Nikola Tesla's death, the tide has begun to turn. Edison's famous light bulb is slowly being replaced by more efficient florescent and LED lights. As for Tesla, the electric induction motor he invented in 1888 is still used in millions of machines, from the fans in this gymnasium to the electric cars of tomorrow. His inventions continue to improve the lives of billions. And if you look on Wikipedia, Tesla's page is just a little bit longer than Edison's. History is being re-written.

To my friends and classmates, I leave you with this. Let the present belong to someone else. The Class of 2014 isn't going to change the world during our first week out of school, and that's ok. Deep down inside of us, we know what it takes to make a difference. We've learned how to use what we know to do some good in the world, because we experienced it first hand, right here at Westminster. We must work for the future—to positively impact the lives of others in the next year, the next decade, even the next century. Our turn to rewrite history has come, and someday people will be reading our Wikipedia pages. Let us not grow cynical with the here and now, because one day people will judge us by our work and accomplishments, and our futures will tell the truth.

Commencement & Baccalaureate

May 17th, a rainy Saturday, the Class of 2014 walked across the stage placed inside the gymnasium. The day was still a joyous occasion even though the ceremony was not held on the traditional senior terrace due to poor weather conditions. After four or more long hard years the day had finally come that we all had waited for; commencement.
First days of class, last days of class, midterms, finals, birthdays, formals, homecomings, sporting events, Greek life, honor societies, all these things and more took place during our college years. We all grew in ways we never thought imaginable. We saw and felt joy, Westminster does school become home and friends become family. Congratulations Class of 2014!

Sorority Philanthropies

The five sororities on campus work hard all year long giving back to their respective philanthropies and to the community. While being in a sorority offers a woman on campus countless opportunities, like sisterhood, friendships, leadership roles, it offers something else too: it offers the chance to give back in ways that only a huge group that comes together can. Throughout the year each sorority plans events to benefit their philanthropies, and while each national organizations philanthropies are chosen nationally the how is chosen by the sorority women. They chose how to raise the money by coming up with unique events each year or holding an annual event that gets better each year. These events are usually open to all of campus because at the end of the day it's about giving back as a campus.

These women have done tremendous work for their philanthropies and in November they all came together for the All Sorority Thanksgiving hosted by Kappa Delta. This thanksgiving dinner brings together all the sorority women on campus and this year sorority women raised enough money to help feed 12 local families for Thanksgiving.

Fraternity Philanthropies

The Greek men on campus work hard all year raising money for their philanthropies. The four fraternities find fun and innovative ways to give back. whether it be pieing someone in the face or listening to local bands. The fraternities on campus love giving back to their philanthropies, to campus, and to New Wilmington.

Each fraternity works diligently to plan their events throughout the year. They advertise and often put themsleves in the hot seat, imagine getting pied in the face, in an effort to raise as much money as they can for their respective philanthropies.

Greek Week

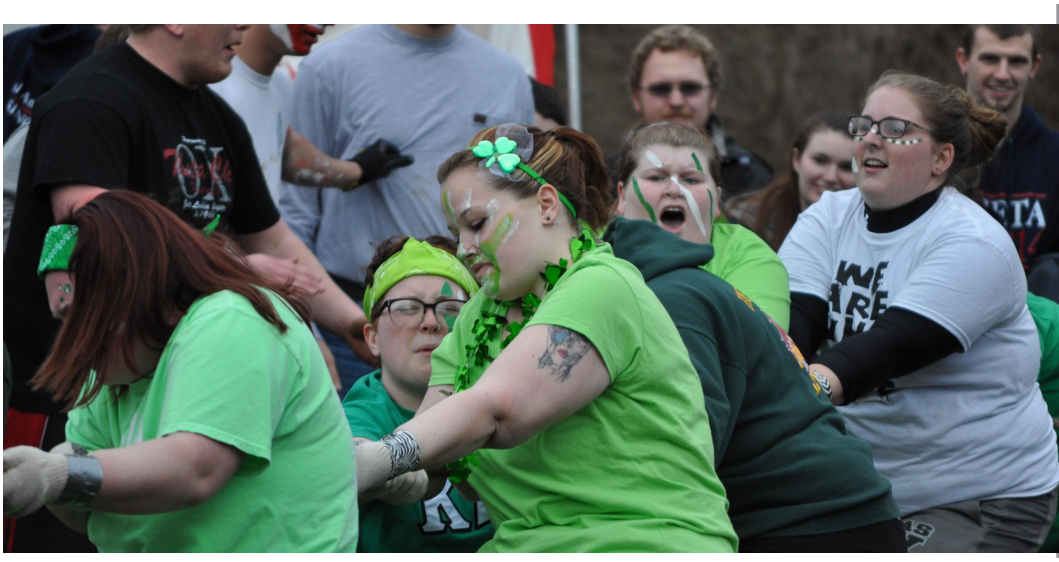

Greek Week unites Westminster's Greek Community through an enduring week of healthy athletic competition, philanthropic events, and brother and sisterhood bonding. Fraternities and Sororities across campus compete in enthralling challenges in effort to be crowned champions at the end of the week. The brothers of Sigma Phi Epsilon and sisters of Alpha Gamma Delta secured the number one spot thus preserving their respective winning streaks. Only at Westminster will you find a group of strong-willed, passionate, and fun-loving Greeks who, in midst of competition, can come together to raise thousands of dollars for Cystic Fibrosis by collecting pennies. No matter the letters, we're all Greek together!

Sing & Swing

Each year the Greeks put on a show to remember, Sing & Swing. After spending their days filled with classes and Greek Week events they hurry to their assigned locations for their two hour practices. After practicing all week they are ready for the stage on Saturday. Each organization gets a few minutes on stage to perform. This year the theme was Movie Soundtracks. For the Sororities, Zeta Tau Alpha took the well deserved trophy for first place. For the Fraternities, Phi Kappa Tau took first place for their excellent Grease performance. As the night drew to the close the true winners of the night were announced, the Greek community for once again raising money for the Hartner Family and their battle with Cystic Fibrosis.

1.The brothers of Theta Chi perform their rendition of Great Gatsby.
2. The sisters of Kappa Delta pose after their performance of Burlesque.
3. Zeta Tau Alpha show off their MC Hammer skills to the White Chicks soundtrack.
4. Mike Brooks looks fierce during Sigma Phi Epsilon's0 Danger Zone performance.
5. Phi Mu delivered an awesome show to Pitch Perfect.
6. Alpha Gamma Delta owns the stage during their stunts to Michael Jackson's This Is It.
7. Phi Kappa Tau has the biker look down in their 1st place Grease routine.
8. Alpha Sigma Phi showcase stunts during their Jackson 5 number.
9. Sigma Kappa throw their hands in the air during their Rock of Ages dance.

The ARGO editors and their staffs work all year long to make sure the ARGO is amazing by the time it hits your hands in the fall each year. The planning begins during the last few weeks of the previous academic year in the midst of final editing of the previous book. Summer is filled with finishing and beginning books. In the fall when the ARGO is distributed the editors and staff are already hard at work writing copy and photographing all the events on campus. Our student editorial team and staff work through weekends and breaks to make sure no event is missed. When summer rolls around the editors continue to work in making the book its best. The joy of finishing the book only lasts a couple of weeks because the excitement of starting the next book begins.

So wherever you are right now,

no matter your age, major, or greek affiliation,

we all have our own memories of this year ...

In Memoriam...

When the night has been too lonely
And the road has been too long,
And you think that love is only
For the lucky and the strong,
Just remember in the winter
Far beneath the bitter snows
Lies the seed that with the sun's love
In the spring becomes the rose.

In my dreams
I'll always see you soar
Above the sky
In my heart
There will always be a place
For you for all my life
I'll keep a part
Of you with me
And everywhere I am
There you'll be
And everywhere I am
There you'll be

Emily will be missed and her memory will live on in all those she touched.

"...If you never had the chance to get to know Paul, just know he was the kind of friend that we all hope to have. He was always there when any of us needed support, simply because he wanted to be. He went through so much and stayed strong – he fought like a champion. He is a hero to all – may you rest easy our sweet angel. We will never forget you or your compassion. You will be truly missed by the Broadcast Dept. and community as a whole. We love you!" -Taylor Nichol

Paul Sammons was an amazing young man not only to his family but also to friends and relatives. He had a huge heart and putting his hardships with health aside, was always there to help others. His professors wrote about his maturity and diligence in the classroom. His friends told of a heart of gold and a tremendous energy and wit. Paul was well beyond his years when it came to understanding life . He hated injustice and was always willing to lay down time for what he believed was needed. He had a love for epic and historical movies and music. His world was huge with the hero always winning because – well – that was the right conclusion. His family and friends saw him as a champion through a difficult few years of pain that finally took him from us. In those years, he never complained, continued to entertain with great humor, tried to help all around him feel better about their circumstances, and lived life with vigor. He had huge hopes of changing the world for good and helping all those with difficulties. He didn't realize what an impact he made! We all miss you son, friend, student, and child of God. We look forward to being together again!

Letter from the Editor...

If you asked me six months ago what I would be doing at the end of July, I definitely wouldn't have thought I would be writing the last words in the 2013-14 Argo. In my three years on the Argo staff, I have never been more proud of a book or group of people. This year was quite the rollercoaster ride for the Argo staff...but we finally made it.

Most of you will probably get this book, read through it for a few minutes, and put it on your shelf for a few years before looking at it again. Afterall, that's what yearbooks are for, right? To contain the memories and photos that you may not remember in a few years, or the ones that will be too far down your various social media newsfeeds to even try looking for.

We are often asked why we even bother printing the books instead of keeping it digital, and some question why we even have a yearbook at all. We are so lucky to attend a school that values the arts. And while most of us have all complained about how small Westminster is at some point, that's exactly why a yearbook is even possible here. This book is a year-long labor of love, and while it's main purpose is to hold memories, everyone on staff can agree that they learned valuable life lessons while it was being created. It's a creative outlet, and like many campus organizations, it's a place to practice what we learn in the classroom.

This book could not have been possible without the entire student body. Without you we wouldn't have things to photograph or write about. Whether you posed for pictures, lent us your resources, gave us pictures, quotes, helped us identify photos, even if you were a shoulder to cry on for someone on staff during a mental breakdown (you know who you are)...you ALL made this possible.

My staff. It is hard to put into words how proud I am of these people. This book was truly a group project. Keri and Alex, my editors, you are amazing. You were the ultimate leaders and multitaskers and you will be greatly missed! Thank you for sticking around til the bitter end. To Dan, thank you for three great years as Business Manager, not many know how much work goes into this book behind the scenes. My wonderful Copy and Photo Staffs, thank you for holding on til the very last week. I am so excited to see some of you moving up through the ranks and I can't wait to work with you again. I would like to thank our outgoing adviser, Connie McGinnis, for all of her many years of service to the Argo. To Kate Altman, our new adviser, I am so looking forward to working with you more closely next year and I'm excited to see what you can bring to the book!

There you have it, Westminster. We hope you enjoyed the 2013-14 edition of the Argo. While many say that Westminster is known for holding doors open for people, that's not my favorite thing about our school. We have all somehow found ourselves in this little bubble we call home. In the meantime we have found best friends, sisters, brothers, mentors, and even those friends you can only handle in small doses. But in the end, no matter what, we are always there for eachother, and I couldn't be more proud to be a part of this big crazy family.

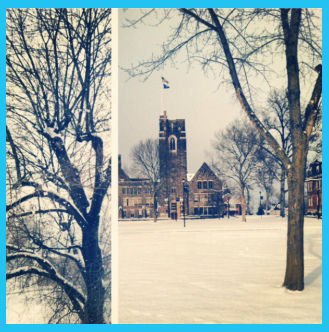

Sincerely,

Sarah O'Malley
